Craig's path to the law began in his living room, watching his father set down his briefcase after a long day of work. There was something about that moment, the quiet weight of it, that made Craig want to grow up and follow in his father's footsteps. That early admiration became the foundation of a career built on the same principle: show up, do the work, and leave nothing to chance.

Today, Craig brings that same ethos to every case he takes on. His philosophy is simple but unwavering: leave no stone unturned in pursuit of the best possible outcome for his clients. Colleagues and clients alike know him as a tireless advocate, someone who treats every case with the seriousness it deserves and never stops fighting until his clients have the representation they came looking for. Looking ahead, Craig hopes to build on that reputation, with his sights set on making partner at Kopka Law Group and becoming known as a lawyer who isn't afraid to take a case all the way to trial, and win.

Outside of the office, Craig is just as disciplined about taking care of himself as he is about his cases. Health and fitness are a major part of his life and the key to his sharp, mental clarity. What drives Craig more than anything else, however, is home; his wife, who is his world, their two cats, and the many friends he counts himself lucky to have.
